

Everywoman's Health

Deborah Dillon, M.D.

Medical Philosophy

Having traveled through other parts of the world and experiencing many different cultures other than my own, I came to realize there are multiple choices a woman has to make for her healthcare. Because of this, I feel that it is my role as a medical provider to women, to help everyone of my patients in understanding these choices and to assist them in making the right choice through listening, educating and understanding their needs to the best of my ability. In today's world there are endless resources to utilize and I strive to assist women in using all of these resources to their best advantage.

Area's of Medical Interest

- Traditional and complementary approaches to overall health

- Traditional and alternative approaches to menopause
- Minimally invasive surgery techniques
- Obstetric care, including high risk pregnancies
- Prevention and treatment of cervical dysplasia
- Providing continuous lifetime healthcare to all of my patients

Personal Interests

Enjoy spending my life with my family which includes my two sons, my daughter and my incredible husband, who keeps me grounded in reality, not to mention our menagerie of dogs, cats, fish and hamsters. I spend hours reading, hiking, skiing and trying to keep up with them. Since we are new to the Portland area, we are enjoying discovering the many delights this wonderful city and surrounding area has to offer.

Education

BS Microbiology, Auburn University

MS Microbiology and Histology,
Auburn University

MD, University of Pretoria,
South Africa

OBGYN Residency,
University of Virginia

Board Certified through the American
Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology.